WELCOME TO METRO BOSTON

JOE PANTORNO, SPORTS EDITOR

While the NFL world awaits the downfall of the New England Patriots, Tom Brady and Co. continue to prove that they are still the class of the conference after an impressive win on Sunday afternoon over the Los Angeles Chargers in the AFC Divisional Round. For the eighth straight year, the Pats will be playing for a spot in the Super Bowl as the Kansas City Chiefs await. For a breakdown of New England's 41-28 victory, head inside.

'JAYME IS THE HERO,' SHERIFF SAYS OF CLOSS

1 A 13-year-old girl's escape from a rural home where she was held captive for three months by a Wisconsin man charged with murdering her parents helped break the case and she should be treated as a hero, the local sheriff said on Friday. Jayme Closs is with her aunt after her rescue on Thursday and has been reunited with the rest of her family and her dog, Barron County Sheriff Chris Fitzgerald told reporters. Thousands of volunteers and hundreds of law enforcement officers had searched the small town of Barron after Closs' parents were found shot dead in their home in October, their front door blown open with a shotgun, their daughter gone. Closs was targeted by suspected kidnapper Jake Patterson, 21, who carefully planned her parents' murder, even shaving his head to avoid leaving forensic evidence at the crime scene, Fitzgerald told reporters. "Jayme was the target," said Fitzgerald. "The suspect had specific intentions to kidnap Jayme and went to great lengths to prepare to take her."

SNOWSTORM BLANKETS MID-ATLANTIC, 7 DEAD

2 A massive winter storm rolled eastward to the mid-Atlantic United States on Sunday after dropping more than a foot of snow on parts of the Midwest and killing at least seven people in highway accidents on Saturday. The weather system, which started as rain from Mexico but has since turned into snow, is forecast to affect an 1,800-mile (2,900 km) swath of the United States from Colorado to the mid-Atlantic. Millions of Americans in 10 states and Washington, D.C., were under a winter storm warning or advisory on Sunday. Four people in Missouri and three in Kansas died in roadway accidents, authorities in both states reported. Virginia Gov. Ralph Northam declared a state of emergency on Saturday in anticipation of snow and ice accumulation, transportation problems and power outages in the state. Central and northern Virginia may receive up to 10 inches of snow, according to the National Weather Service. Washington was forecast to receive almost a half-foot of snow, forcing airlines to cancel over one hundred flights leaving Reagan National Airport on Sunday morning.

WIFE: GHOSN SUFFERS 'HARSH' TREATMENT

4 The wife of ousted Nissan Motor Co. Ltd. chairman Carlos Ghosn has urged Human Rights Watch to bring attention to the "harsh treatment" he has received while being detained in a Japanese jail, according to a letter seen by Reuters on Sunday. Japanese authorities have charged Ghosn with under-reporting income and aggravated breach of trust for temporarily transferring personal investment losses to Nissan in 2008. Carole Ghosn, in the nine-page letter to Kanae Doi, the Japan director for Human Rights Watch, the non-government organization, asked the group to "shine a light on the harsh treatment of my husband and the human rights-related inequities inflicted upon him by the Japanese justice system." Ghosn was in charge of an alliance that included Nissan Motor, Mitsubishi Motors and France's Renault until his November arrest and removal as chairman of the automakers sent shockwaves through the industry. The government has denied requests to end his 39-day detention. His lawyers have said it would likely take more than six months for his case to come to trial.

GRAHAM TO ASK FBI ABOUT REPORT OF TRUMP

5 The Republican head of the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee said on Sunday he plans to ask the FBI about a report it launched a probe into whether President Donald Trump had been working on Russia's behalf, suggesting the agency may have gone too far. "I am going to ask the FBI director, was there a counterintelligence investigation opened up regarding the president as being a potential agent of the Russians? I find it astonishing," Sen. Lindsey Graham said on the "Fox News Sunday" program. "If this really did happen, Congress needs to know about it," he added. "How could the FBI do that? What kinds of checks and balances are there?" The New York Times reported on Friday that the FBI opened the counterintelligence investigation in 2017 after Trump fired then-FBI Director James Comey, out of concern the president's actions may have presented a threat to national security. Comey at the time was leading an investigation into Russia's alleged interference in the 2016 U.S. presidential election. U.S. intelligence agencies have said Moscow tried to tip the election to Trump.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS

CITY of BOSTON

NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT
26 COURT STREET
BOSTON, MA 02108
TEL: 617-635-0603

BOSTON HOUSING AUTHORITY
52 CHAUNCY STREET
BOSTON, MA 02111

On or about January 23, 2019, the City of Boston, acting through its Department of Neighborhood Development (DND), will authorize the Boston Housing Authority (BHA) to submit a request to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for the release of funds under Section 18, Section 8, and/or Section 9 of the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended, to undertake a project known as Clippership Redevelopment for the purpose of:

1. HUD DEMOLITION/DISPOSITION APPROVAL
Disposition and demolition of the 20-unit Clippership subsidized housing property at 125-131 Sumner Street, East Boston. The disposition is subject to approval by HUD through its Demolition/Disposition application process for public housing pursuant to Section 18 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 and HUD regulations including 24 CFR 970.

2. NEW DEVELOPMENT:
The proposed Clippership Redevelopment, also known as 125/133 Sumner Street, entails the demolition of 20 existing, physically distressed residential structures (20 housing units total) and the construction of a mixed-income, transit-oriented development, including two, separately financed buildings. In total the Project will create 52 new residential units, of which 36 will be affordable units. There will be 22 income restricted affordable rental apartments in Building 1, and 30 home ownership units in Building 2 of which 14 will be affordable. The Project will provide approximately 9 surface parking spaces. In addition, the ground floor of Building 1 will contain approximately 3,123 sf of retail space and a community room of approximately 1,040 square feet. BHA will provide project-based operating subsidy through the federal Section 8 or other program for the 22 rental apartments. The estimated total development costs, including non-federal sources, is approximately $36 million.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT:
The City of Boston has determined that the project will have no significant impact on the human environment. Therefore, an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA) is not required. Additional project information is contained in the Environmental Review Record (ERR) on file at the DND Compliance Unit, 26 Court Street, 11th Floor, Boston, MA and may be examined or copied weekdays 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., excluding legal holidays.

The activities proposed comprise a project for which a Finding of No Significant Impact on the environment was published on October 26, 2018. An Environmental Review Record (ERR) that documents the environmental determinations for this project is on file at the City of Boston's Department of Neighborhood Development, 26 Court Street, 11th floor, Boston, MA 02108, and may be examined or copied weekdays from 9A.M to 4P.M.

PUBLIC COMMENTS
Any individual, group, or agency may submit written comments on the ERR to the DND Compliance Unit, 26 Court St, 11th floor, Boston, MA 02108. All comments received by January 22, 2019 will be considered by the City of Boston prior to authorizing submission of a request for release of funds.

OBJECTIONS TO RELEASE OF FUNDS
HUD will accept objections to its release of funds and the City of Boston's certification for a period of fifteen (15) days following the anticipated submission date or its actual receipt of the request (whichever is later), only if they are on one of the following bases:

(a) The certification was not executed by the Certifying Officer of either the City of Boston; (b) the City of Boston has omitted a step or failed to make a decision of finding required by HUD regulations at 24 CFR Part 58; (c) the grant recipient has committed funds or incurred costs not authorized by 24 CFR Part 58 before approval of a release of funds by HUD; or (d) another Federal agency acting pursuant to 40 CFR Part 1504 has submitted a written finding that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of environmental quality. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedures (24 CFR Part 58) and shall be addressed to the Environmental Officer, Department of Housing and Urban Development, Thomas P. O'Neill Federal Building, 10 Causeway Street, Boston, MA 02222-1092. Potential objectors should contact HUD to verify the actual last day of the objection period.

Furloughed federal workers protest in Post Office Square

No paycheck and no relief in sight for federal workers as the government shutdown goes into its third week.

NATE HOLMAN
letters@metro.us

At Boston Logan International Airport, TSA Officer Betsy Costello has noticed an uptick in the number of people who say "thank you" from sympathetic passengers as the federal budget impasse goes into its third week and longest government shutdown in U.S. history.

The dispute has disrupted everything from air travel to tax collection and suspended pay for 800,000 government workers.

At the core of the issue is border security, specifically a wall or barrier between the United States and Mexico. President Donald Trump has asked lawmakers to provide him the $5.7 billion he is seeking for border security, which has been denounced by newly re-elected Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) as ineffective and a waste of funds.

On Friday, the Democrat-controlled House of Representatives voted 240-179 to restore funding for the Interior Department and the Environmental Protection Agency, two of the agencies that have been shuttered since Dec. 22.

But Republicans who control the Senate have so far stood with Trump and insisted that any spending bills include money for his wall. The chamber wrapped up business for the week without taking up the House-passed bill.

"We're all working people. Average Joes and Janes," TSA Officer Costello said. "My checkpoint is running business as usual, but people do talk about looking for work elsewhere. Many restaurants at the airport are giving us discounts. People say 'thank you' more. They know what we're going through. But we're all getting pretty depressed."

Costello was part of the crowd of unpaid federal workers who rallied at Post Office Square on Friday to protest Trump's demand for a $5.7 billion wall and to demand the reopening of the government — and quickly. Workers carried signs reading "Don't Wall Feds Out," "Trump Lies Matter," and other anti-shutdown slogans. They chanted their eagerness to work and discussed their despair while trying to stay warm in below-freezing temperatures.

Furloughed federal workers said that morale within their respective agencies is plummeting.

"My job has nothing to do with the wall, border security, immigration," said EPA worker Leiran Biton. "I have already had to start looking for other jobs because we don't know how much longer this will last."

U.S. Sen. Ed Markey (D-MA) told the heavily-bundled crowd that he is forgoing his paycheck until all federal employees are back on an active payroll.

"It is cruel and it is unconscionable that families must suffer because the president has a fantasy which he has been engaging in for the past two years," Markey said.

Seeing the confusion and frustration, Pauli's Italian restaurant owner Paul Baker announced that he would provide free lunches for furloughed workers on Monday, Jan. 14, from 1 to 3 p.m.

"My mother raised me to offer a helping hand whenever there are hard times or tragedies," Barker said. "It obviously doesn't remove all the pain, but anything helps at the same time."

On the Pauli's Facebook page, Baker wrote that he has no interest in taking sides on the politics behind the shutdown. "It helps to know that people care," Baker said.

Graham urges Trump to open US government temporarily

The nation's longest shutdown is now in its third week.

A Republican senator close to President Donald Trump on Sunday backed a temporary re-opening of the federal government, in the 23rd day of the longest shutdown ever, to allow for talks on a spending agreement that could satisfy Trump's border security demands.

Democrats in Congress rejected Trump's request that legislation to fund the government include $5.7 billion of taxpayer money for a wall on the U.S. border with Mexico. They have refused further negotiations until the government is reopened after being partially shut down since Dec. 22.

Graham, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said he urged the president on Sunday to reopen the government for a limited period to try to get talks going again.

If no progress is made, he said, then Trump should declare a national emergency as a way to get money to build his wall, a plan not popular with some fellow Republicans.

"Before he pulls the plug on the legislative option, and I think we are almost there, I would urge them to open up the government for a short period of time, like three weeks, before he pulls the plug [to] see if we can get a deal," Graham said on "Fox News Sunday."

He said Trump told him, "Let's make a deal, then open up the government."

The record shutdown has furloughed 800,000 federal employees and cut government services across the United States. They missed their first paychecks on Friday, heightening concerns about mounting financial pressures on employees, including air traffic controllers and airport security officials who are working without pay.

Trump continued to blame Democrats for the impasse. "I'm in the White House, waiting. The Democrats are everywhere but Washington as people await their pay. They are having fun and not even talking!" Trump said Sunday on Twitter.

Drew Hammill, deputy chief of staff for Democratic House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, responded on Twitter that "Speaker Pelosi has been in DC all weekend working from the Capitol."

In a meeting last month with Pelosi and top Senate Democrat Chuck Schumer, Trump said he would be "proud" to shut down the government over wall funding. Recent polls show most Americans think the president is to blame.

Jennifer Lawless, a politics professor at the University of Virginia, said she believes Trump and Republicans will lose the game of chicken as furloughed workers, airport travelers, tourists and others "experience the consequences of political dysfunction firsthand."

"The shutdown is real. The wall is hypothetical. And at some point soon, the Republicans are going to remember that it's real people in their districts who aren't getting paid, real people who aren't able to access government services, and real people who vote," she said.

A concourse at Miami International Airport was shut down for part of the weekend because not enough Transportation Security Administration agents were present to staff all of the airport's security checkpoints.

The airport said it would reopen the concourse on Monday and "continue to monitor checkpoint staffing levels and make adjustments as necessary." REUTERS

There's plenty to know about Bezos' wife MacKenzie

Amazon founder Jeff Bezos and MacKenzie Bezos at the Vanity Fair Oscar party in March 2018. GETTY IMAGES

Perhaps as surprising as the news that Amazon founder and CEO Jeff Bezos was getting divorced is that he was married. Bezos and his wife MacKenzie have kept a tight lid on their private lives over 25 years of marriage.

That was then. Although the couple's mutually tweeted divorce announcement was amicable, Jeff and MacKenzie Bezos are now prime headline fodder. What will a split of Jeff Bezos' estimated $139 billion fortune mean for Amazon? Or his status as the world's richest man?

But the week's biggest Bezos headline may have been: Who is MacKenzie Bezos? The woman who may soon be richer than Oprah and the Queen of England combined has kept a much lower profile than most partners of celebrity CEOs, while simultaneously building a substantive résumé.

MacKenzie and Jeff Bezos worked and lived in NYC

Jeff Bezos and MacKenzie Tuttle met at the new-ish NYC hedge fund D.E. Shaw in 1992, when he hired her to work as a research analyst. Tuttle had just graduated from Princeton, where Bezos had graduated six years earlier.

She asked him out

According to CNBC, the pair ended up with offices next to each other, and MacKenzie asked Jeff out for lunch, where they hit it off. After three months of dating, they were engaged; three months later, they married and lived together on the Upper West Side.

She's been with Amazon since before the beginning

Within a year of their marriage, Jeff convinced MacKenzie to move to Seattle. With MacKenzie literally behind the wheel, Jeff wrote Amazon's business plan on the cross-country trip. He founded the company in a rented garage in October 1994. MacKenzie wrote checks and helped with bookkeeping; in 1999, Wired reported that she helped negotiate Amazon's first freight contracts. As the company grew, she stepped back from day-to-day dealings. The couple ultimately had four children.

MacKenzie is an American Book Award-winning novelist

At Princeton, MacKenzie studied fiction writing with Nobel Prize-winning author Toni Morrison ("Beloved"), who told Vogue that MacKenzie was "one of the best students I've ever had in my creative-writing classes." MacKenzie has published two novels, 2005's "The Testing of Luther Albright," which won the prestigious American Book Award, and 2013's "Traps." The New York Times called "Luther Albright" a "quietly absorbing first novel" about "an emotionally repressed husband and father." "Traps" is about a reclusive actress who comes out of hiding to confront her father, who sold her out to the paparazzi.

She defended Jeff on Amazon

In 2013, MacKenzie left a one-star review on Amazon for an investigative book about Jeff Bezos and the company that she considered unfair. She wrote: "I worked for Jeff at D. E. Shaw, I was there when he wrote the business plan, and I worked with him and many others represented in the converted garage, the basement warehouse closet, the barbecue-scented offices, the Christmas-rush distribution centers, and the door-desk filled conference rooms in the early years of Amazon's history. Jeff and I have been married for 20 years."

Cold no prob for No Pants Subway Ride

People from around the globe — Boston included — stripped off their bottoms in the cold to take part in this tradition.

WILL DRICKEY
will.drickey@metro.us

Every year, bold seminudists brave the January cold to participate in the No Pants Subway Ride. The "flash mob" occurs in cities around the globe, including New York, Boston, London, Amsterdam and Berlin. Sunday, Jan. 13, was that day, so any pantsless transit riders after the weekend likely have something else going on besides a mostly harmless tradition.

The event began with seven Improv Everywhere hooligans in 2002, and has since sprung into a global event in as many as 23 cities, with thousands of participants.

The No Pants Subway Ride followed a specific route through New York and Boston's public transit maps, from 3 to 5 p.m, and was followed by an official after-party. The only rule for the game was that acknowledging it was not permitted. When asked, participants were required to just say they forgot to wear pants.

(L) Peter Biechler and Mike Phillips wait to get warm on the southbound Orange Line train. (R) Other "No Pants" T riders opted to stay in the slightly warmer waiting enclosure.

It's finally here! Boston Calling organizers have announced the lineup for the 10th edition of the fan-favorite music festival ahead of its return this spring. Here's everything you need to know.

Who are the headliners?
After scoring Eminem, Jack White and The Killers as headliners for last year's fest, Boston Calling is back with another stacked lineup of A-list performers. Boston Calling 2019 will be headlined by a trio of prominent acts, including rapper Travis Scott.

Following their headlining performance at Coachella 2019 this spring, Australian rock group Tame Impala will ship up to the Hub to perform at Boston Calling 2019. The band previously played the music festival during the spring 2015 edition. Twenty One Pilots is also set to headline this year, which will mark the group's return to the show for the first time in five years after playing the fall 2014 edition.

Full list of performers
The rest of the lineup for this year's fest is pretty impressive as well, featuring a number of returning favorites.

Some of the highlights for the 10th edition of Boston Calling include Odesza, who played the 2016 show; Hozier, who's back after performing at the fall 2015 fest; Janelle Monáe, who's returning after playing the 2016 edition; and Brandi Carlile, who last performed at Boston Calling in 2017. Notable first-time Boston Calling performers include local rockers Guster, rapper Logic, the band Greta Van Fleet, plus Anderson .Paak & The Free Nationals.

In recent years, the annual festivities has also featured a comedy and entertainment stage to go along with all the great music, such as the Natalie Portman-curated film fest at last year's show. This time around, Boston Calling is going pretty heavy with "Saturday Night Live" stars and alums for its arena stage, as Weekend Update co-host Michael Che, current cast member Melissa Villaseñor and former "SNL" star Fred Armisen are all set to perform. Fellow "SNL" alum and Massachusetts native Jenny Slate, who was set to perform last year but couldn't make the fest, is slated to perform as well at Boston Calling 2019.

Local comedy star Lamont Price will perform this year too, another returning favorite who hosted the comedy stage when it debuted in 2016. Additionally, the Boston Ballet will take the stage, as well as Grammy winner Imogen Heap, who will present a special spoken word performance using her famous Mi.Mu gloves. Check out the full Boston Calling 2019 lineup below.

When do they go on sale?
Announce day tickets for Boston Calling 2019 are on sale now and include three-day general admission passes for $249, as well as VIP passes for $599 and platinum VIP passes for $1099.

VIP passes will give you access to premium viewing areas for the outdoor stage, plus access to the VIP lounge. The platinum passes are even swankier, featuring all the VIP offerings plus a special food and beverage package, complimentary on-site parking, access to an exclusive gifting suite and more. Ticket prices for each type of passes will gradually increase as it gets closer to the festival.

When is it?
Boston Calling 2019 will take place on Memorial Day weekend, May 24-26. The festivities will once again take over the Harvard Athletic Complex in Allston. For tickets and more information, check out bostoncalling.com.

5 Fun things to do in Boston this week

Fill up on chowda, dance with the stars and more.

Think you know everything there is to know about "Stranger Things"? NETFLIX

Find a cure for your winter woes and have a bit of after-work fun this week. From pop culture trivia nights to chowda celebrations, there's no shortage of awesome stuff happening in the Hub. Here's our guide to the best things to do in Boston this week.

Chowda Day
Who doesn't love a hot bowl of New England-style clam chowder? In honor of National Soup Month, Legal Sea Foods is celebrating the beloved local comfort food by declaring Tuesday a "Legal" holiday, appropriately dubbed Chowda Day. Every Legal location will be offering $1 cups of their New England clam chowder with purchase of an entree. Jan. 15, various locations, $1 with purchase of an entree, legalseafoods.com

Trash Night
Head to the Brattle Theatre on Tuesday for Trash Night, a monthly underground comedy and film event. The festivities feature a screening of an "F-grade," just terrible movie that organizers thrust upon its unsuspecting audience members. The folks behind Trash Night also run strange original videos throughout the showing and encourage guests to participate in the fun. Jan. 15, 7:30 p.m., Brattle Theatre, 40 Brattle St., Cambridge, $8, brattlefilm.org

Irish Whiskey Dinner
Solas kicks off its whiskey Wednesday series with a special dinner this week. Stop by to enjoy a cocktail half hour featuring Kilbeggan Single Grain followed by a three-course dinner crafted by Solas sous chef and former "Chopped" contestant Alex Galvis. The menu includes Irish soda bread crostinis, coffee rubbed racks of lamb, cinnamon apple tarts, plus an end-of-the-night toast of Connemara Peated Single Malt Irish Whiskey. Jan. 16, 6 p.m., Solas, 710 Boylston St., $65, solasboston.com

'Stranger Things' Trivia
While we're still several months away from the premiere of "Stranger Things" season three, you can still get your fix of all things Hawkins by testing your knowledge of the hit Netflix series. Lansdowne Pub is hosting a "Stranger Things" trivia night on Wednesday, where teams of six or less can compete for a chance to win a $100 gift card. Make sure to RSVP ahead of time on eventbrite.com. Jan. 16, 8 p.m., Lansdowne Pub, 9 Lansdowne St., free to register, lansdownepubboston.com

'Dancing with the Stars Live!'
The hit dance competition TV series brings its live tour back to the Hub this week. See some of your favorite dancers show off their moves at the Wang Theatre Thursday and Friday nights. Jan. 17-18, 7:30 p.m., Wang Theatre, 270 Tremont St., $53.75+, bochcenter.org

What to watch on TV this week

See the return of a reality-TV classic and boldly going where no one has gone before.

ANDREW HUSBAND
drew.husband@metro.us

The winter TV season is in full swing, which means each week that passes will be chock-full of shows returning from their midseason breaks and new series premiering. The second full week of January will be no different. From the return of a reality-TV classic to boldly going where no one has gone before, here's what to watch on TV this week.

"Temptation Island," Jan. 15 at 10 p.m. on USA Network
If you thought the premiere of "The Masked Singer" and the return of "The Bachelor" were the only two major reality TV shows to watch, think again. USA Network has revived the Fox classic "Temptation Island," which is set to make its debut Tuesday. Hosted by actor Mark Walberg (as opposed to actor Mark Wahlberg), the new iteration of the series will follow the basic formula of its predecessor: put a bunch of couples on an island with 24 single men and women and see what happens.

"Corporate," Jan. 15 at 10:30 p.m. on Comedy Central
When Matt Ingebretson and Jake Weisman's "Corporate" premiered last year on Comedy Central, it took audiences and critics by storm with its hilariously dark approach to workplace comedies. This was due just as much to the writing as it was to the excellent cast of supporting players (Lance Reddick, Adam Lustick, Anne Dudek and Aparna Nancherla). On Tuesday, the season two premiere will rerelease them all on viewers eager to see (or cringe at) what happens next.

"Deadly Class," Jan. 16 at 10 p.m. on Syfy
Based on the acclaimed graphic novels created by Rick Remender and Wesley Craig, Syfy's new "Deadly Class" series will surely appeal to fans of "Kick-Ass" and "Riverdale" alike. Starring Benjamin Wadsworth, Benedict Wong and Lana Condor, and executive-produced by "Avengers: Infinity War" filmmakers Joe and Anthony Russo, it's sure to be a hit when it premieres Wednesday. Whether this will translate from cult status to wide appeal, however, remains to be seen.

"Star Trek: Discovery," Jan. 17 at 8 p.m. on CBS All Access
Despite the firing of original showrunner Bryan Fuller and his immediate successors, "Star Trek: Discovery's" first season went on to be a favorite among fans and critics. Season two, which premieres Thursday on CBS All Access, looks to be in keeping with its premiere season's spirit. Along with returning cast members Sonequa Martin-Green, Doug Jones, Shazad Latif, Anthony Rapp and Mary Wiseman, the new season will also see Anson Mount and Ethan Peck playing two iconic characters.

"Carmen Sandiego," Jan. 18 on Netflix
Netflix has taken another classic children's series and transformed it into something radically different with its new "Carmen Sandiego" cartoon. Starring Gina Rodriguez as the titular anti-hero, this version of the character turns her into a more Robin Hood-like characters who steals items in order to protect them from an international criminal organization. What's more, it's also missing the classic theme music from the original, but kids today likely won't notice at all.

"The Punisher," Jan. 18 on Netflix
Following the uber-violent events of season one, "The Punisher" season two sees Frank Castle (Jon Bernthal) being thrust into a new series of deadly events involving a young girl on the run (Giorgia Whigham). This puts him on a path that leads to a new round of villains and the man he nearly mangled to death the season prior—Billy Russo (Ben Barnes), otherwise known to fans as the villainous Jigsaw.

Mark-Paul Gosselaar on 'The Passage' and doing genre for the first time

The former "Saved by the Bell" star tackles genre for the first time. EUZA MORSE/FOX

"The Saved by the Bell" actor admits he had never done genre before.

drew.husband@metro.us

Whenever audiences hear the name "Mark-Paul Gosselaar," chances are they'll immediately think about the younger version of the now 44-year-old actor who played Zack Morris in "Saved by the Bell."

Or they might recall his more recent performances in the underrated "Franklin & Bash" and "Pitch," both of which are sadly no more.

With Fox's new genre series "The Passage," however, Gosselaar is trying out the worlds of science fiction and fantasy for the first time in his career.

"What attracted me initially was the character-driven aspect of it. At the core of it is the relationship between Brad and Amy," he says of his and Saniyya Sidney's characters. "I didn't know much about the books. I hadn't read them before I read the script. But knowing that Ridley Scott, Matt Reeves and Liz Heldens were at the helm, and the genre aspect of it, made me realize just how big the expectations behind this were. That's what really excited me about it. I really trusted that they would take the show in the direction that it needed to go."

Gosselaar isn't wrong, for one of the most surprising (and strongest) elements of "The Passage" is the onscreen relationship that develops between Federal Agent Brad Wolgast and Amy Bellafonte (Sidney). Tasked with taking her to a secret government facility experimenting with an all-in-one cure based on vampire DNA, Wolgast instead decides to protect Amy from her would-be captors. Much of the characters' chemistry has everything to do with their work behind the scenes.

Aside from the show's central focus on Wolgast and Amy's relationship, the challenge of making a series heavily steeped in genre and everything that comes with it was also a factor in Gosselaar's decision to get involved.

"I've never done a genre show quite like this," he explains. "Dealing with things that will be put in during the post-production process proved to be quite challenging at times. You're literally reacting to something that really isn't there when you're shooting the scene."

Another aspect of Gosselaar's involvement in "The Passage" that stands out is the fact that his character, at least in the novels, doesn't survive for too long.

"Brad dies in the first book," he tells Metro. "Then I read the second book and he wasn't in it much, except for a few mentions. And when I got to book three, I just did a search for his name and nothing came up. I was like, 'What the hell?' I actually called the producers and Fox about it, and they said I would be sticking around for a while. I mean, I would love to stick around for the duration of the show, and from what I've been told by the powers that be, we'll be staying very close to the book in this first season.

"It should be interesting to see how it plays out," adds Gosselaar, "but I'm just along for the ride. I love this project. I love what we're trying to accomplish. So if I can be a part of it in any capacity, that's great."

"The Passage" premieres tonight at 9 p.m. on Fox.

Teach your kids to save money with a smart wallet

Introducing children to personal finance can be tricky. That is why Pigzbe—an intelligent wallet inspired by a piggy bank that helps children learn to save through an app and virtual games—was developed. Pigzbe also uses a family cryptocurrency called Wollo to introduce children to the world of virtual coins. Metro chatted with Filippo Yacob, co-creator and CEO at Pigzbe, to find out more.

DANIEL CASILLAS | METRO WORLD NEWS

FILIPPO YACOB
co-founder and CEO at Pigzbe

What is Pigzbe?
Pigzbe is a handheld "piggy-wallet" and an educational app, which runs on a new, family-friendly cryptocurrency called Wollo. Pigzbe teaches children ages 6+ the building blocks of saving, earning, budgeting and spending in a hands-on way. We like to think we're giving kids financial superpowers!

How does it teach children to save money?
Managing digital money is a basic 21st-century literacy – one our children can't afford to miss out on. But it's tricky, because you can't count the bills, and you can't touch the coins. Saving is just a small part of learning to be smart with money.

In the past, the physicality of piggy banks and allowances provided really great early routes into personal finance: earning cash through chores, filling up the piggy bank with coins, counting your savings, then buying something you really want.

Pigzbe is based around a similar earning-and-saving framework. The big difference is that it is designed for an increasingly cashless world, so rather than physical coins and notes, Pigzbe uses a cryptocurrency.

Why?
Because cryptocurrencies are the evolution of digital money. They are here to stay, and we want children to have the tools to take control of their own future.

Tell us how it works.
In basic terms, the parent sets a task via the Pigzbe app, and the child is notified via their Pigzbe device.

Once the child has completed the task they can collect their reward in the form of Wollo.

In the app, the Pigzbe money tree helps the child visualize their savings goals (e.g. a game, a toy, or a present for a friend), so they can save for the things they really want. The more money the child has, the bigger the tree grows. When the child has reached a savings goal, they will be able to spend their Wollo in the real world, with approval from Mom and Dad.

Patriots steamroll Chargers for 8th straight AFC title game berth

The Patriots showed they are still a force to be reckoned with in the AFC.

JULIAN EDLOW
sports@metro.us

This was finally the year we were counting the Patriots out. Tom Brady, Rob Gronkowski, Julian Edelman and Co. were too old and too beat up to carry the Patriots to an eighth straight AFC Championship Game.

The public bought in, as 72 percent of the money wagered on the game was on the Chargers' side, per the Action Network. Los Angeles hadn't lost a game outside of L.A. all season, winning in five different time zones — including an early kickoff in Baltimore last weekend.

Then the Patriots came out and put together a vintage performance on the offensive side of the ball, reminding us why we never should doubt Bill Belichick's team at this time of the year, especially in Foxborough in a 41-28 victory on Sunday.

The Pats came out and punched the Chargers in the mouth right off the bat, putting together a lengthy touchdown drive that resulted in the first of three Sony Michel touchdowns. The rookie was spectacular on the ground, rushing for 129 yards on 24 carries.

James White anchored New England's backfield in the short passing game, hauling in 15-of-17 targets for 97 yards. Edelman was a beast down the field, consistently picking up hard-fought first downs on his way to 151 yards on nine receptions.

Brady orchestrated it all, completing 34-of-44 passes for 343 yards, hitting Phillip Dorsett for his lone touchdown pass of the game. The 41-year-old's health and ability to still compete at an elite level had been questioned all season. That narrative may have been put to bed on Sunday afternoon at Gillette Stadium, thanks to another masterful postseason performance.

Despite allowing three touchdowns in the second half, the Patriots were rock solid defensively. Aside from tying the game at seven after Keenan Allen got into the end zone on a blown coverage by the Patriots, this one was never really a contest. However, a much tougher task awaits next Sunday — a Kansas City offense that led the NFL with 35.1 points per game.

Sony Michel scored three touchdowns in the Patriots' 41-28 win over the Chargers in the AFC Divisional Round. GETTY IMAGES

The Patriots and Chiefs already had seen each other this season, back in Week 6 — a wild shootout at Gillette Stadium that New England wound up winning, 43-40.

Patrick Mahomes, who joined Brady and Peyton Manning as the only quarterbacks to throw 50 or more touchdowns in a single season, shredded the Patriots' secondary for 352 yards and four touchdowns in the matchup. But the first-year starter also made crucial mistakes, tossing a pair of interceptions.

But the bigger story line in the AFC Championship Game will be the Patriots' ability to win outside of New England, or lack thereof. The dominant victory over Los Angeles moved the Pats to 9-0 at home, but the team was just 3-5 in road games, two of them coming over AFC East doormats in the Bills and the Jets.

Meanwhile, the Chiefs improved to 8-1 at rowdy Arrowhead Stadium on Saturday, the lone defeat coming at the hands of the Chargers in a 14-point fourth-quarter comeback. Even after an extremely encouraging performance against the Chargers, the Patriots are going to have their hands full in Kansas City in the AFC Championship Game. If Tom Brady's going to make an unthinkable ninth Super Bowl appearance, he's going to have to earn it.

Report: Brady played hurt during home stretch

A report from NFL Network's Ian Rapoport on Sunday confirmed what many had believed to be true about Tom Brady this season.

The New England Patriots veteran quarterback was playing hurt during the second half of the season as he suffered an MCL sprain during Week 11 while playing receiver against the Tennessee Titans.

He was on the team's injury report until Week 15, as all eyes were fixated on a knee brace that continuously looked to cause him discomfort during the final stretch of the season.

While Brady of all people would not use it as an excuse, it presents a clear reason as to why the future Hall of Famer had his worst statistical season since 2014.

His worst was still awfully solid, as the 41-year-old completed 65.8 percent of his passes for 4,355 yards with 29 touchdowns and 11 interceptions.

There was no denying that the Patriots offense looked out of sorts at times this season as inconsistencies were clearly present, which led to cause for concern heading into the playoffs.

Tom Brady. GETTY IMAGES

New England's 11-5 2018 season was their worst since going 10-6 in 2009. That's just a testament to how successful this dynasty has been over the past 15 years.

It was still good enough to snag the No. 2 seed in the AFC, which provided a much-needed bye week for Brady to get right.

Rapoport added that Brady was back to full health just hours before their 1 p.m. ET kickoff in the AFC Divisional Round against the Los Angeles Chargers.

There certainly seemed to be no hindrances in Brady's game as he surgically picked apart the Chargers in a dominating showing on Sunday that became his 28th career postseason victory, which further extends his NFL record.

He and the Patriots will be playing in their eighth consecutive AFC Championship Game next week, though a stiff test awaits them in Kansas City in the form of Patrick Mahomes and the Chiefs.

The Amazing Sex Secret of 78 Year-Old 'Italian Stallion'

"My husband shocked me with more sexual passion than he's had in years. He took me in the bedroom like we were newlyweds and gave me a night I'll never forget"

The Inside Story on Great Sex!

This week I got a letter from a reader about a "little secret" that has made her sex life with her husband absolutely explosive! (Those Texas women are spicy!)

Tina writes:

Dear Karen,

For years my husband and I had a great love life. He was sexy, passionate and so confident. But when he reached his 50s, he started to struggle with getting and keeping an erection. The few times we did have sex, his erection was definitely softer, leaving us both unsatisfied. He tried every product out there; prescriptions, creams, testosterone, male enhancement pills… but nothing worked. I know this is terrible, but I found myself thinking "My strong, passionate husband has become a sexual weakling." I had no idea it would all turn around in just 3 weeks!

Last month, he came home from a business trip in Europe and shocked me with more sexual energy and passion than he's had in years. Hard as a rock, he tossed me around the bedroom like we were newlyweds' and gave me a night I'll never forget! It was incredible and so exciting!

He flat wore me out that night and it's been like that ever since. His erections are so hard and powerful, they trigger the most intense, toe-curling 'moments' I've ever had! So here we are, enjoying the best sex of our lives… in our late-50's!

When I asked my husband what caused such a dramatic change, he said on his trip he stayed in a hotel room next to an Italian nutritionist and his wife. Through the walls, he heard them passionately making love every single night, and sometimes again in the morning. One afternoon, he saw the husband leave their room and he couldn't believe it. The man looked much too old to be having so much sex.

My husband couldn't help himself, so he asked the man his secret. The nutritionist smiled, introduced himself as Vito, and told my husband he was 78 years old, his wife 65, and that after 32 years of marriage, their sex life was as good as ever. Then he took a small pack of tablets from his satchel, gave it to my husband, and said "These come from a small town up north and are made from naturally pure plant extracts, packed with densely rich sexual nutrients. They will give you back the sex-drive you had when you were young, and make you harder than you can imagine." Then he laughed and said, "You'll become an Italian Stallion like me!"

Italian Stallion is right! These past several weeks have been a dream. My husband's desire for me is through the roof. He takes me whenever he wants, and he even wakes up most days with a 'morning salute' like he did years ago. I love it! He's a sexual powerhouse, beaming with confidence, and our marriage is stronger than ever.

Karen, here's why I'm writing you. The pack of tablets is about to run out and we desperately want more. I've looked everywhere but can't find them. Do you know anything about these tablets from Europe and how to get some here in the States?

Sincerely,
Tina C.,
Fort Worth, TX

Tina, you and the rest of my readers are in luck because I do know about these secret European sex tablets. Ever wonder why older men from Italy, Greece, Spain, and all over Europe are famous for staying energized, passionate and sexually active well into their golden years? Well, for decades, these men have relied on a unique blossom extract called Provarin to enhance their sexual performance and satisfaction.

Milled on the fertile northern plains, the key ingredients come naturally from pure extracts found along the Baltic Sea. Finely ground and pressed into tablets, Provarin has a legendary reputation throughout the European sexual underground for naturally fueling extremely hard erections, and a powerful climax. As Giovanni from Amsterdam put it, "It's like sexual rocket fuel, especially for us older guys!"

The best part from a woman's perspective, as you well know, is that the extreme hardness and ongoing power is enough to send us over the blissful edge! I found out about Provarin a few years ago when I was dating a cowboy from Wyoming. He took Provarin every morning and believe me, that good ol' boy sure rocked my nights!

All-natural and safe to take, Provarin is still a well-kept secret for those in the know and they like to keep it that way. It's an old-school, family business and product is still harvested by hand twice a year. They don't have a website and don't do any advertising. They don't need to. Long-time customers and word of mouth ensures their limited stock is sold out every year.

They do have a distributer here in the U.S. When I reached out to them for this article, a spokesman said they were proud to produce the highest quality product for men and couples. He went on to say that if any of my readers call to place an order today and mention this article, they'll get a one-time 50% discount, plus 30 free tablets, and free shipping!

Wow, so there you go, Tina - and the rest of you readers! Just give them a call today and mention this article. The number is 1-800-711-9986.

Aren't you glad you asked?

Karen

Bruins have something in fourth line

Sean Kuraly, Noel Acciari and Chris Wagner are putting in good minutes for the B's.

RICHARD SLATE
sports@metro.us

Bruins forward Sean Kuraly is just a third of what has become a productive fourth line for the Bruins. REUTERS

For obvious reasons, the top few forward lines on NHL teams will always get most of the attention from casual hockey fans. They score a majority of the goals, get named to All-Star teams and earn the biggest contracts.

Still, to get anywhere as a team you need bottom-six forwards that are more than capable of providing energy when their more talented teammates are floundering.

Harkening back to the Bruins' last Stanley Cup in 2011, we all remember that particularly special fourth line in Daniel Paille, Greg Campbell and Shawn Thornton, a.k.a. the Merlot Line, with fondness. They aren't quite on that nickname level yet, but this edition of Boston (26-15-4) appears to have a good thing going on their new fourth line with Sean Kuraly (five goals, eight assists) at left wing, Noel Acciari (one goal, three assists) at center and Chris Wagner (five goals, four assists) at right wing.

Saturday's key 3-2 victory over the vaunted Toronto Maple Leafs put the Bruins within two points of the Ontario club for second place in the stacked Atlantic Division.

In a streak that has seen the Bruins win six of their last seven games, Kuraly, Acciari and Wagner have been active, especially during a win on Jan. 5 against the Buffalo Sabres.

Wagner scored a goal 20 seconds into the game that was called off for goaltender interference on Kuraly, but they responded with another Wagner tally halfway through the first period that gave Boston a 1-0 lead.

Acciari took the puck away from Buffalo in their own defensive zone and poked it ahead to Wagner, who fired a nice shot by goaltender Linus Ullmark.

To illustrate Cassidy's growing trust in them, they have seen their ice time increase — oftentimes more than everyone on Boston's struggling third line (Danton Heinen, Jakob Forsbacka Karlsson and Ryan Donato).

"I think we talked a little bit about trying to establish a little more consistency in the second half [of the season] and maybe that's a line that starts games at home to establish puck possession early and tilt the territorial advantage," noted Cassidy. "A lot of times it's [Patrice] Bergeron's line that gets the start, but maybe that's something we can look at going forward, and they certainly earned their keep tonight."

When asked about their chemistry, Wagner talked about how they are all close off the ice, which makes sense since they seem to have so much in common. They are all Americans in their mid- to late-20s who played college hockey (Kuraly at Miami Ohio, Acciari at Providence, Wagner at Colgate) before turning pro. They are smart and, as they've shown lately — Kuraly had back-to-back game-winning goals at Buffalo and then vs. Chicago in the Winter Classic — they can even get hot from time to time.

With winter in full effect, these are the types of players that Bruins fans naturally gravitate toward, since they seem more like regular guys compared to some of the superhumans around the league.

Boston goes for its seventh win in eight games on Monday night (7:30 p.m., NESN) as they host the rival Montreal Canadiens, who are just three points behind the Bruins in the Atlantic.

Who will be the Red Sox's closer in 2019?

The Boston Red Sox got off to an aggressive start to the offseason, bringing back World Series MVP Steve Pearce on a one-year deal and following it up by rewarding postseason hero Nathan Eovaldi with a hefty four-year contract of his own.

While Boston is bringing back the large majority of its championship core, one key role remains a mystery — who's going to be the closer in 2019?

Craig Kimbrel, who remains a free agent after playing out the last year of his contract with the Red Sox in 2018, had a good season on paper — 2.74 ERA and 42 saves. But that was nearly a full run higher than his 1.91 career ERA, and we all remember the emotional roller coaster that Cardiac Craig took us on during that playoff run. Boston won in spite of Kimbrel in the postseason, as the closer owned a 5.91 ERA in nine appearances, constantly allowing cushy leads to become nailbiters.

Could Kimbrel return to Boston in 2019? Possibly, and that's something we wouldn't have said just a month ago. Kimbrel has said he's in search of a record-breaking six-year contract, something no team is likely going to offer at this point.

If Kimbrel is willing to settle for a significantly lesser deal, both in terms of length and annual salary, a reunion with the Red Sox isn't totally out of the question. But even a discounted Kimbrel will still be the most expensive bullpen arm on the market, and Boston is strapped for cash with the current payroll.

Zach Britton was perceived as the second-most coveted closer on the market before re-signing with the Yankees over the weekend, and is familiar with the AL East. He has been in the division since he debuted for Baltimore in 2011, getting traded from the Orioles to the Yankees in the midst of this past season. Britton posted a 3.10 ERA in 41 appearances, going 2-0 with seven saves. But the ceiling on Britton when fully healthy is as high as any — he was in Cy Young consideration during a dominant 2016 season in which he closed out 47 games for the save and had just a 0.54 ERA.

Could Craig Kimbrel return to the Sox? GETTY IMAGES

Adam Ottavino is fresh off a tremendous season with the Rockies but also won't come cheap. Ottavino saw plenty of work in 2018 in Colorado, pitching 75 innings, predominantly as the setup man. He owned a 2.43 ERA and could land somewhere as a closer in 2019, though the Yankees are also pursuing the righty as well.

If the Red Sox want to try and find a more affordable option, names like Cody Allen and Justin Wilson are still on the market. Allen's spent his entire seven-year career with the Indians, and although he earned 27 saves in 70 appearances in 2018, he also posted a career-worst 4.70 ERA (his career ERA is 2.98). He probably cost himself some money with the down season, but it also makes him a bargain if a front office like Boston's believes he's in line for a bounceback year.

Wilson's also a seven-year MLB veteran but has been more of a journeyman, making four stops thus far in his career. He most recently was the setup man for the Cubs, where he owned a 3.46 ERA in 71 appearances. Wilson has experience closing in his career, though, with his last chance at a full-time role being in Detroit in 2017.

He wouldn't be the most noteworthy signing, but also wouldn't break the bank.

Finally, the Red Sox could simply look internally for their next closer. Joe Kelly was an option before bolting for a big deal in Los Angeles, where he'll join the team he helped defeat in the World Series.

Ryan Brasier came out of nowhere for Boston last season to pitch in 34 games, showing decent strikeout ability along with a gritty 1.60 ERA. He was even better as the setup man in the postseason, earning five holds in nine appearances, lowering his ERA to a mere 1.04. It's not far-fetched to think president of baseball operations Dave Dombrowski is considering slotting Brasier into the closer role and finding some cheaper bullpen arms to help fill in the earlier innings.

Whichever route the Red Sox decide to go to sure up their bullpen, the clock is running out. It's hard to believe spring training's almost here.

If you fail to file a timely written appearance and objection followed by an Affidavit of Objections within thirty (30) days of the return day, action may be taken without further notice to you.

The estate is being administered under formal procedure by the Personal Representative under the Massachusetts Uniform Probate Code without supervision by the Court. Inventory and accounts are not required to be filed with the Court, but recipients are entitled to notice regarding the administration from the Personal Representative and can petition the Court in any matter relating to the estate, including distribution of assets and expenses of administration.

WITNESS, Hon. Brian J. Dunn, First Justice of this Court.

Date: January 02, 2019

Aries Double-check everything before you make a move. Consider whether a change is in your best interest. Focus on personal improvements, not on changing others.

Taurus Learn all you can and finish what you start. You have great potential, and if you apply your skills, expertise and knowledge, you will reach your target.

Gemini Don't believe what you are told just because you want to. Ask for verification before you make a mistake. Anger will not solve anything. Nurture important relationships.

Cancer Look for original ways to overcome problems. If you work alongside people who share your beliefs, you'll form new alliances and boost your chances of success.

Leo A change will do you good, but make sure your reasoning is sound before you get started. Personal opportunities are apparent, along with romance and creative projects that will improve your life.

Virgo You'll discover a new interest if you socialize. Discussing your opinions will draw both negative and positive responses, which will prompt you to do something that will make a difference.

Libra Take physical action and make improvements to your appearance, how you deal with relationships and how you effect change. Procrastinating will not solve problems.

Scorpio The results you get will be directly linked to the way you handle others. Stick to the truth, take a unique approach and back away from anyone who is extravagant or misleading.

Sagittarius Make adjustments at home that will lead to an easier life. Personal improvement is favored, as long as you don't go over budget. Don't let a smooth talker take advantage of you.

Capricorn Suggestions are only guidelines. When it comes to getting things done, don't lose sight of the rules, schedules and the importance of details. Organization and preparation are fundamental.

Aquarius Opportunities are all around you. Don't try to do everything at once. Choose what will bring you the greatest return physically and emotionally, and do your very best.

Pisces Keep the ball rolling and help everyone who needs it. If you offer aid, suggestions and kindness to others, you will enrich your life. Someone from your past will want to reconnect. EUGENIA LAST
